ScreenToyz

ScreenToyz combines a wacky toy that plugs into your computer with software that creates Hollywood-quality animation on screen. It's a whole new kind of screen saver that's under complete, interactive user control.

The Screentoyz product line consists of: Joe Blow and his TNT Detonator; Latrina and her Toilet; and Stitch with his high-voltage Knife Switch.

Each ScreenToyz character, developed by Saturday-morning cartoon animators, has its own individual set of screen-saver modules and user-controllable animated activities. The hardware controller designed for each ScreenToyz product, which plugs into the keyboard port, complements the character, and is enhanced by a high-quality look and feel.

Each ScreenToyz software package includes sixteen modules with animated sequences, transition sequences, and on-screen games. In every one of these modules, the user literally controls the actions of one of the three different characters, resulting in endless combinations and hours of slapstick entertainment.

The Target Market

ScreenToyz are targeted at everyone with a computer. They are most similar to screen savers and will do wonderfully merchandised as an impulse item.
